The London Globe says: Barbarous nation seem to delight in surgical operations of a painful nature. They probably estimate the benefits to be derived from an operation by the pain accompanying it, just as the traditional bumpkin thought half-a-crown too much pay to a dentist for having a tooth easily extracte when the barber at home would have pulled him all around the room for 6d. The application of moza, referred to in our account last days of Mr. Sumner, is an instance of this. with a light regetable down, which is then se on fire. This agreeable process is an invention of the North American Indians, who seem to have regarded it as a sort of panacea. Dr. Brown-Sequard tells us that it is, perhaps, the most painful of surgical operations.

ANTIQUITY OF INTOXICATION.

The abuse of fermented drinks is as old as the world; but the extension which this abuse has made and the aggravated character which it has assumed have made it one of the special calamities of our age. Man does not get mellow to-day at meals only, and with liquors of a natural and generous character; away from the table, and while fasting, he administers to himself an artificial preparation which is either a poison or a medicitle to render him more efficient. Modern alcoholism is quite another thing from the brutal but transient intemperance of the past. It has all the evils that in

In Tennessee, a company raised in Jackson, numbering one hundred and twelve, have held an annual reunion since the war, and at the last roll-call only thirteen survivors could be accounted for. Those instances indicate the utility of canvassing the country, in order to show the mortality which has prevailed among the men who may be said to have sacrificed their lives or health in the service of the nation, and who are justly entitled to recognition therefor on the roll of honor in their old age. In Illinois, efforts are being made to have a e-union of the survivors on the 14th of September next, the anniversary of Mexico.
